

I support the ARRL position on this issue ( I never thought i would ever support the ARRL position on anything) With the events of the last few days clearly illustrate the power problem we have and this same group wants to send information and data down these same power lines ? I can see that this the current state of the power grid what will happen if they place anymore strain on this system? Until they have the resources in place and a reliable system in place then and only then would i consider any proposal for addition services. I think they need to get there act together on power issues before they try anything else.

I say NO to any grant at this time.
